Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Dear Sirs:

I'm really getting tired of the courts dragging this settlement issue out. Microsoft has made a fair and viable solution to the courts. It is apparent that the only voices of protest come from competitors. Consumers do not and have never had a voice in this whole debate. Microsoft has always played fair, they have had the brains and know how to market their product. If other companies had half the smarts that Microsoft does then they wouldn't be yelling foul. If competitors feel that this settlement will give even more visibility to the consumers then maybe they should step up to the plate and donate an equal amount. Fair is fair, let's settle this and let Microsoft get back to making the world a much easier place to communicate!

Thank you!
